Demonstrations of Real FREE Energy/OverUnity Electrical Technology

William Alek BSEE

All conventional transformers utilize a principle of transferring electrical energy called Faraday's Law of Induction (1831), which permits a near equal amount of REAL AC Power to be transferred from the input coil to the output coil. This "near equal amount" is the result of imperfections or losses in the transformer causing the operating efficiency of the same transformer to approach, but never exceed 100%. These losses show up as wasted heat energy.

Another type of transformer called a Split-Flux Inductor (SFI) / Transformer (SFT), embodied in US Patent 9620280B2 has efficiencies far exceeding 100% due to its unique construction. Driven by AC Power applied to the single primary winding, the flux produced is split equally into two identical cores. Two secondary windings, set up an opposing flux action in a third core. This action forces the input phase difference between the voltage and current to increase as a function of frequency.

This phase difference can easily reach 90° causing the efficiency of the SFI / SFT to reach infinity. Increasing the frequency further causes the phase difference to go beyond 90° which in turn, causes the efficiency calculation to flip into the negative region.

As part of the live workshop demonstration, all this is captured using a Tektronix TPS 2024B Isolated 4-Channel Oscilloscope in conjunction with customized software specifically developed to read the oscilloscope information, calculate and display the efficiency of the SFI / SFT device on a standard notebook pc.
